

HAVE YOU SEEN THIS BIKE?

My homemade double-tall bike was lost in the area of 41st and Ellis / Crescent. When last seen, it was also sporting a front basket and a U.S. flag on the back.

My name is Dan Korn. On June 25th, at about 9 pm, I let a kid ride my homemade tall bike in the area of 41st and Ellis/Crescent, just east of Drexel. I like to let other people ride it and experience the fun of riding tall. However, the bike was never returned. I don't know if the bike was stolen or crashed, and other than that I hope nobody was hurt, I don't really care. But I would very much like to get my bike back. It's made from junked bicycle parts, and it isn't really worth anything, except to me for the time I put into it. It's also potentially dangerous for someone who isn't trained in tall bike riding, and it requires constant maintenance to stay in working order.

If you have seen my bike or have any information on it, please call me at 312-505-9307 or email me at dan@dankorn.com. I will gladly come and pick it up, no questions asked, and I won't involve the police. Even though the bike is not really worth anything monetarily, I will offer a working regular bike in trade, as well as 20 dollars for your trouble. I'm also a member of a bike club called the Rat Patrol, which builds bikes like these out of junk, and I can invite anyone interested to a Rat Patrol build day where we can help you build your own tall bike, chopper, or any other kind of bike or trike you can dream up, and it won't cost anything, other than the time you put into it. You can check out the Rat Patrol at www.rat-patrol.org.

I really love my bike, and I just want to get it back. Thanks.
